Choosing an Internship in Environmental Science. Internships can be a life and career changing portion of the college curricula. Sometimes they are required by your school, but often they are not, it simply depends on your school and program. While earning the Environmental Science merit badge, Scouts will get a taste of what it is like to be an environmental scientist, making observations and carrying out experiments to investigate the natural world. Careers in Environmental Science are so varied it is difficult to consider them as one category. You could end up working from home most of the time or traveling around the world on an annual basis. If you are fascinated by the world we live in and want a hands-on degree that will equip you with the tools to make a difference then Environmental Science could be the course for you. This professionally accredited degree has employability at its core and will provide you with the knowledge and skills needed to enter a range of environmental ...
