I imagine these glasses would help law enforcement agents incredibly. These glasses would allow officers to search through crowds to find a suspect. In fact, these glasses were used at the Superbowl in Florida in 2000 to allow officers to be able to identify anyone with a criminal record. The world of law enforcement is very different now than it was when I entered it in 2001. In just a few short years, technology has advanced by leaps and bounds, changing the way police officers do just about everything.
